If new Constitution is not approved by the People
the 1901 Constitution is retained

Voters in Alabama have approved six Constitutions. Most states have had several constitutions. Some states even require that their constitutions be re-written every 10 or 20 years.

Will the transition to a new Constitution work without chaos?

All previous amendments and laws will apply to past decisions. A new constitution would apply to new activities. The new constitution should have a section called "schedule" which should lay out the smooth transition from old to new. This process has been used by many states with no problems with orderly transition. Alabama can implement a new constitution without chaotic results.
